

KOL MEVASSER

The Economics of Liberty

Rabbi Jonathan Sacks

The most surprising best-selling book in 2014 was French economist Thomas Piketty's Capital in the Twenty-First Century— a dense 600-page long treatise on economic theory backed by massive statistical research: not the usual stuff of runaway literary successes.

Much of its appeal was the way it documented the phenomenon that is reshaping societies throughout the world: in the current global economy, inequalities are growing apace. In the United States between 1979 and 2013, the top one per cent saw their incomes grow by more than 240 per cent, while the lowest fifth experienced a rise of only 10 per cent.

More striking still is the difference in capital income from assets such as housing, stocks and bonds, where the top one per cent have seen a growth of 300 per cent, and the bottom fifth have suffered a fall of 60 per cent. In global terms, the combined wealth of the richest 85 individuals is equal to the total of the poorest 3.5 billion – half the population of the world.

Piketty's contribution was to show why this has happened. The market economy, he argues, tends to make us more and less equal at the same time: more equal because it spreads education, knowledge and skills more widely than in the past, but less equal because over time, especially in mature economies, the rate of return on capital tends to outpace the rate of growth of income and output. Those who own capital assets grow richer, faster than those who rely entirely on income from their labour. The increase in inequality is, he says, "potentially threatening to democratic societies and to the values of social justice on which they are based."

This is the latest chapter in a very old story indeed. Isaiah Berlin made the point that not all values can co-exist – in this case, freedom and equality. You can have one or the other but not both: the more economic freedom, the less equality; the more equality, the less freedom. That was the key conflict of the Cold War era, between capitalism and communism.

Communism lost the battle. In the 1980s, under Ronald Reagan in America, Margaret Thatcher in Britain, markets were liberalized, and by the end of the decade the Soviet Union had collapsed. But unfettered economic freedom produces its own discontents, and Piketty's book is one of several warning signs.

All of this makes the social legislation of parshat Behar a text for our time, because the Torah is profoundly concerned, not just with economics, but with the more fundamental moral and human issues. What kind of society do we seek? What social order best does justice to human dignity and the delicate bonds linking us to one another and to God?

What makes Judaism distinctive is its commitment to both freedom and equality, while at the same time recognising the tension between them. The opening chapters of Genesis describe the consequences of God's gift to humans of individual freedom. But since we are social animals, we need also collective freedom. Hence the significance of the opening chapters of Shemot, with their characterisation of Egypt as an example of a society that deprives people of liberty,

(Continued on page 3)

KJ Schedule Behar Behukotai

Erev Shabbat / Friday, May 15th
Shaharit / Morning Prayer ... 6:30 am
Minha / Arvit..... 6:30 pm
Candle Lighting 7:29 pm
Sefirat Ha'Omer, Forty-second Night

Shabbat

Saturday, May 16th
Shaharit / Morning Prayer .. 8:30 am
Minha & Arvit..... 6:30 pm
Havdalla..... 8:33 pm
Sefirat Ha'Omer, Forty-third Night

Yom Yerushalayim

Sunday, May 17th
Shaharit / Morning Prayer .. 7:30 am
KJ & Talmud Torah Walk for Israel at Cheviot Hills Rec Center 9:30 am Sefirat Ha'Omer, Forty-fourth Night

Weekdays

Mon, Wed to Fri, May 18 & 20 to 22
Shaharit / Morning Prayer .. 6:30 am
Sefirat Ha'Omer, 45th to 49th Nights

Rosh Hodesh Sivan

Monday Eve & Tuesday, May 18-19
Tue. Shaharit 6:15 am

Erev Shabbat / Friday, May 22nd
Shaharit / Morning Prayer ... 6:30 am
Minha / Arvit..... 6:30 pm
Candle Lighting 7:34 pm
Sefirat Ha'Omer, Forty-ninth Night

Shabbat / Erev Shavuot

Saturday, May 23rd
Shaharit / Morning Prayer ... 8:30 am
Eyewitness Panel: Where Were You When the Farhud Happened?

Shavuot Weekend

Shabbat, May 23, 2015, during Morning Services

Where Were You When the Farhud Happened?

An Eyewitness Panel on the Anniversary

Keynote Speakers: Joseph Samuels, Charles Dabby, Fuad Salem

Coinciding with Hag HaShavuot, the 74th Anniversary of the Farhud, the Jewish Journal will publish a feature article by Mr. Samuels, our dear member, who was a boy at the time. The article will run in the Thursday, May 21st edition. On Shabbat morning, May 23rd, during morning services, Mr. Samuels will talk briefly about the history of Jews in Iraq, especially in Baghdad, and about the events that led to the Farhud. He will also speak briefly about his experiences as an 11 year boy at the time. Our other panel members, Charles Dabby and Fred Salem, will also share their experiences. Then, Mr. Albert Nissan will talk about his life in Baghdad during the 1967 Six Day War and also in general. We look forward to learning from them.

Q. Do you know Jewish children in public school?

A. Give them an individualized Jewish education at KJ Sunday School for Kids!

Ages 5 to 13, Kindergarten to 8th Grade
Sunday Mornings, 10:00 am to 12:00 pm

Knowledge—a gift that lasts for generations!

To register or for information contact Dafna Young,
Educational Director at 310.502.8548 • 310.474.0559

Refuah Shlemah

Moselle Amron • Maurice Ovadia • Tilda Levy
Esther Duke • Abe Abraham • Sassoon Ezra

In Memoriam

We remember these yearzeit anniversaries May 16 to 23, 2015. It is customary to light a memorial candle, donate tzedaka, & attend Shabbat services.

27 Iyar / Shabbat, May 16th

Sassoon Elisha Sassoon Yoseph Elisha

28 Iyar / Sunday, May 17th

Hannah Sassoon Hannah Khatoon bat Mozelle Tov
Yoseph Hai Ezra Shimon

1 Sivan / Tuesday, May 19th

Ezra Shalom Avraham

3 Sivan / Thursday, May 21st

Abraham Blank Avraham ben Yaacov Dov
George Sher Gedaliah ben Moshe Litman Ha-Cohen

4 Sivan / Friday, May 22nd

Victoria Cohen Victoria bat Hanina

5 Sivan / Shabbat, May 23rd

Aharon ben Shlomo Godsi
Ezra Kelly Elias Levi Ezra Kadoori Eliyahu Levi
Sara Moses Sara bat Sarah
Turan Pourati Turan bat Aghajan
Khodadad Zakaryaie Moshe Haim

Condolences

We send our condolences to the family and friends of Serosh Besharat, z"l on their loss. May Hashem comfort them together with all the mourners of Tzion.

Torah & Haftara Readings

Vayikra/ Leviticus: Behar /Behukotai 531 to 550
Haftara /from Prophets: Yirmiyahu / Jeremiah 51 to 553

(Continued from page 1)

enslaving populations and making the many subject to the will of the few. Time and again the Torah explains its laws as ways of preserving freedom, remembering what it was like, in Egypt, to be deprived of liberty.

The Torah is also committed to the equal dignity of human beings in the image, and under the sovereignty, of God. That quest for equality was not fully realised in the biblical era. There were hierarchies in biblical Israel. Not everyone could be a king; not everyone was a priest. But Judaism had no class system. It had no equivalent of Plato's division of society into men of gold, silver and bronze, or Aristotle's belief that some are born to rule, others to be ruled. In the community of the covenant envisaged by the Torah, we are all God's children, all precious in His sight, each with a contribution to make to the common good.

The fundamental insight of parshat Behar is precisely that restated by Piketty, namely that economic inequalities have a tendency to increase over time, and the result may be a loss of freedom as well. People can become enslaved by a burden of debt. In biblical times this might involve selling yourself literally into slavery as the only way of guaranteeing food and shelter. Families might be forced into selling their land: their ancestral inheritance from the days of Moses. The result would be a society in which, in the course of time, a few would become substantial landowners while many became landless and impoverished.

The Torah's solution, set out in Behar, is a periodic restoration of people's fundamental liberties. Every seventh year debts were to be released and Israelite slaves set free. After seven sabbatical cycles, the Jubilee year was to be a time when, with few exceptions, ancestral land returned to its original owners. The Liberty Bell in Philadelphia is engraved with the famous words of the Jubilee command, in the King James translation: "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof" (Lev. 25: 10). So relevant does this vision remain that the international movement for debt relief for third world countries by the year 2000 was called Jubilee 2000, an explicit reference to the principles set out in our parsha.

Three things are worth noting about the Torah's social and economic programme. First, it is more concerned with human freedom than with a narrow focus on economic equality. Losing your land or becoming trapped by debt are a real constraint on freedom. Fundamental to a Jewish understanding of the moral dimension of economics is the idea of independence, "each person under his own vine and fig tree" as the prophet Micah puts it (Mic. 4: 4). We pray in the Grace after Meals, "Do not make us dependent on the gifts or loans of other people ... so that we may suffer neither shame nor humiliation." There is something profoundly degrading in losing your independence and being forced to depend on the goodwill of others. Hence the provisions of Behar are directed not at equality but at restoring people's capacity to earn their own livelihood as free and independent agents.

Next, it takes this entire system out of the hands of human legislators. It rests on two fundamental ideas about capital and labour. First, the land belongs to God: "Since the land is Mine, no land shall be sold permanently. You are foreigners and resident aliens as far as I am concerned" (Lev. 25: 23). Second, the same applies to people: "Because the Israelites are my servants, whom I brought out of Egypt, they must not be sold as slaves" (Lev. 25: 42).

This means that personal and economic liberty are not open to political negotiation. They are inalienable, God-given rights. This is what lay behind John F. Kennedy's reference in his 1961 Presidential Inaugural, to the "revolutionary beliefs for which our forebears fought," namely "the belief that the rights of man come not from the generosity of the state but from the hand of God."

Third, it tells us that economics is, and must remain, a discipline that rests on moral foundations. What matters to the Torah is not simply technical indices such as the rate of growth or absolute standards of wealth but the quality and texture of relationships: people's independence and sense of dignity, the ways in which the system allows people to recover from misfortune, and the extent to which it allows the members of a society to live the truth that "When you eat from the labour of your hands you will be happy and it will be well with you" (Ps. 128: 2).

In no other intellectual area have Jews been so dominant. They have won 41 per cent of Nobel prizes in economics. They developed some of the greatest ideas in the field: David Ricardo's theory of comparative advantage, John von Neumann's Game Theory (a development of which gained Professor Robert Aumann a Nobel Prize), Milton Friedman's monetary theory, Gary Becker's extension of economic theory to family dynamics, Daniel Kahneman and Amos Tversky's theory of behavioural economics, and many others. Not always but often the moral dimension has been evident in their work. There is something impressive, even spiritual, in the fact that Jews have sought to create – down here on earth, not up in heaven in an afterlife – systems that seek to maximize human liberty and creativity. And the foundations lie in our parsha, whose ancient words are inspiring still.

Shabbat Shalom

SUNDAY, MAY 17, 2015 • 11am - 6pm

CHEVIOT HILLS RECREATION CENTER (Rancho Park) • 2551 Motor Ave, Los Angeles, CA 90064

ISRAEL INDEPENDENCE DAY

67th

Celebrate Israel
Los Angeles

Online Tickets: $6

Skip the long lines! Buy Online and save!

At the gates: $10

Featuring Israeli Superstar: Shlomi Shabat Live!

3:30pm - Official Ceremony hosted by Dennis Prager, with performances by Keshet Chaim Amet Kanon and the Jewish Community Children's Choir under the Musical Direction of Dr. Michelle Green Willner

P FESTIVAL PARKING

Fox Plaza
Parking Garage
2121 Ave of the Stars
Los Angeles, CA 90067

Century Park West
Parking Garage
2030 Century Park West
Los Angeles, CA 90067

Constellation
Parking Garage
10250 Constellation Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90067

*Parking is walking distance from the festival. Shuttles available from all structures all day.

Puppet Show

12:30pm-1:00pm Puff the Magic Dragon
3:30pm-4:15pm Puff the Magic Dragon

Kids Stage

1:00pm-1:30pm Reptile Show
1:30pm-2:00pm Sporty
2:00pm-2:30pm Naama Atal
2:30pm-3:30pm Dod Haim

Bar & Karaoke Lounge

1:00pm-1:30pm Eli Bouzaglo
1:00pm-2:00pm Backgammon Tournament
2:00pm-2:30pm Eli Bouzaglo
2:30pm-3:00pm Israeli Dance Party
3:00pm-3:30pm Karaoke

Main Stage

11:00am-12:00pm DJ Nahal
12:00pm-1:00pm DJ Leer
1:00pm-1:30pm Folk Dancing with David Dassa
1:30pm-2:00pm DJ Que B
2:00pm-2:30pm Folk Dancing with David Dassa
2:30pm-3:00pm DJ Aviel
3:00pm-3:30pm Eli Bouzaglo & Alisa Sharp
3:30pm Tiger Squadron Fly Over
Official Ceremony
Shlomi Shabat

ELI ALISA

Purchase your ticket online and enter the Festival Raffle. Winner will receive a Airplane Ticket to Israel.

DEBBIE NATY SAIDOFF

StandWithUs

Izek & Aline
Shomof

usbank

AM370

AMERICAN FRIENDS OF

ISRAEL

AMERICAN FRIENDS OF

ISRAEL

LOGO BRANDER USA

For more info: 818-466-6482 sharona@israeliamerican.org • CelebrateIsraelFestival.com

IsraeliAmericanCouncilLA @IAC_LosAngeles @CelebrateIsraelFestival

- Main Stage - 3:30pm Yom Ha'Atzmaut Official Ceremony; 5:00pm Headliner Shlomi Shabat
- #MeetMeAtTheBAR - The "it place" for 21+ young professionals with karaoke, music and mingling
- Kotel Tunnel - Walk through time to learn about the history of Jerusalem
- Shuk Machane Yehuda Marketplace - Jewelry, Judaica, fine arts & gifts
- Magen David Adom - Explore a real MDA ambulance & kids activities
- Vendor Village - Community non-profits, organizations & businesses
- Information Booth - General information, maps, Lost & Found, lost kids
- First Aid - Hazala medical & First Aid services
- Talent Check-in / Info booth
- Ticket Booth - Buy your festival tickets here!
- Food Area - Buy your food tickets here! Glatt Kosher (RCC and Kehilla) food vendors
- Community Mural - Grab a paintbrush and take part in a giant community mural
- BJE Education Pavilion - Learn about Jewish education in Los Angeles
- Instagram Exhibit - IAC & Insta Global bring you 100 photos from winners of the #Israel24Seven Instagram competition
- Lone Soldier Pavilion - A look into the lives of local Israeli-Americans who are now serving in the IDF
- The Kotel - Place your message in our Festival Kotel and the IAC will deliver them to Israel

- Kids Stage - Performances throughout the day, including headliner Dod Haim at 2:30pm
- Jerusalem Biblical Zoo - bunnies, sheep, goats and more
- Kids Activities - Face painting, balloon art and more
- Puppet Theater - a wondrous telling of Puff the Magic Dragon
- Sifriyat Pijama B'America - Balloons! Books! Register to receive free Hebrew books every month
- Amusement Park - Carnival rides/ Fun Zone
- IAC Mishelanu/IAC Matzpen/Taglit Birthright IAC Shelanu - interactive games and hip hangout pavilion for college and college-bound high school students
- Machane Kachol Lavan - Come and taste the activities from Machaneh Kachol-Lavan!
- IDF Experience - See if you have what it takes to conquer the Israeli Army obstacle course
- Teen Pavilion - Basketball hoops, video games, pool tables and lounge to chill
- Youth Groups - Fun activities with the Israeli Scouts and Diller Teen Fellowship
- StandWithUs - Israel advocacy at its best
- IAC Pavilion - Stop by recharge and charge your phone!
- Ticket Booth - Buy your food & ride tickets here!
- OurCrowd Tech Pavilion - TEDTalk style presentations every 30 min by some of the hottest Israeli startups in the industry